

Elizabethtown College

JayScholar

COVID-19 Elizabethtown Individual
Submissions

Elizabethtown College COVID-19 Archive

6-8-2020

Flash Prose, June 8th.

Eli Kuklinski

Follow this and additional works at: <https://jayscholar.etown.edu/covid19-submissions>

June 8th, 2020.

For days now, I've been trying to figure out how to write this, trying to find the right words in the right order to say what I want. But, for some reason, it's been hard to find a non-cliche way to say "you are not alone"...

The thing is, though, as cheesy as it sounds, you're not alone. No matter how hopeless it might feel, no matter how much each day blends into the next, you're not alone. Whether you're with others or by yourself; you're not alone. If you're lost and not sure how to spend your time, or you know exactly what to do every day; you're not alone. Your loved ones are just a call or text away.

And, even if you're not able to call or text someone, you're still not alone. Watch your favorite show or movie, or even read your favorite book and spend time with the characters. Listen to your favorite music artist or song. Let the music remind you that someone, somewhere is with you. Play your favorite video game; let it remind you that others know how you feel, even if the situation is different. Go sit in the sun or under the stars; let the sun, moon, and the stars connect you to those near and far. But, above all, know that no matter who you are, where you are, what you're going through, you're not alone, because, through reading this, you have me.